

Students often miss out on on-campus events because information is scattered across flyers, social media, and different organization pages, making it hard to find events that match their interests.